Stock-Taking Time.

Nearly everybody is taking stock now and figuring on prospects for the new year. In figuring, one of the most important things is to figure on probable expenses for the year. If you increase your expenses this year over last year you will have to make more than you made last year and with the majority of us this is not at all probable. Keep a Bank account and you can keep up with expenses easily and next year when you go to figuring you will have this year's expenses before you in checks and you can tell to a cent just where you can trim expenses down and why you can. Anyone running along without keeping an account of expenditures is in no shape to figure on how to get ahead. Deposit all your money and check it all out and you can tell every month whether you are gaining or losing. Try an account in the

CONSIDER CATTLE.

Oconee county, being in the extreme northern cotton belt and containing some rolling land too steep to cultivate profitably, is favorably situated for live stock, especially when we consider the co-operative creamery so near and the beef cattle markets established in different parts of the State.

It is generally conceded that three things are necessary in making the live stock industry profitable, namely: Good stock, home raised feed and proper attention (not necessarily expensive buildings). It is generally more profitable to market surplus feed through cattle, returning the manure to the land, than to sell the feed.

Good pasturage is one of the requirements of a permanent, profitable live stock industry. One man says: "The average pasture consists of three loosely stretched barbed wires around the head of a branch, taking in the neighboring hillsides and gullies, growing briars and old-field pines—a fine place to have a good animal starve." To be sure, the waste land should be put to pastures, but trees and good grass do not grow in the same place. The trees should be cut and the land put in Bermuda grass (our best pasture grass, but not desirable in the cultivated field.) G. M. Barnett, County Agent.

IN FIVE MINUTES! NO INDIGESTION, GAS OR SOUL, ACID STOMACH.

The Moment "Pape's Diapepsin" Reaches the Stomach All Distress Goes.

"Really does" put bad stomach in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and undigested waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach, all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back. It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach regulator in the world. —Adv.

MR. FORD TALKS OF PEACE

On Return to America—"The People Responsible for War."

New York, Jan. 3.—Henry Ford, who led the peace expedition which left here December 4 on the steamer Oscar II for Copenhagen in the hope of bringing about a conference of neutral nations that would end the war, arrived here to-day on the steamship Bergensfjord. He confirmed cable reports that his return had been hastened by illness, but said he intended when he left to come back this month.

Mr. Ford declared his views regarding the cause of the war have undergone a marked change. When he left he said he was of the opinion that bankers and manufacturers of munitions and armament were responsible, but he returns with the belief that it is the people themselves, those being slaughtered, who are responsible. The men doing the fighting have been too content to let those who rule them do their thinking, and they have not taken advantage of their divine right to say for themselves what they shall do and think, the pacifist asserted.

"Republics are no better than monarchies in this respect," he said. "Even in the United States we let those whom we have elected to office be swayed from their duty. We do not assert ourselves. Personally, I have been a voter 31 years, and in all that time I have voted only six times, and then because my wife made me."

Believes Mission Will Succeed.

Of the eventual success of the peace mission Mr. Ford declared he had no doubt. "The movement is now organized and under way," he said. "People are talking about it, and while some criticize when people talk, they think, and when they think they think right."

Mr. Ford's future plans with respect to the peace expedition were uncertain, he said. He left the party in charge of Gaston Plantiff, he stated, in accordance with his original plans, and, despite all reports to the contrary, when the party left the Oscar II, it was as harmonious as could be desired.

"The main idea of the mission," continued Mr. Ford, "was to crystallize into concrete form, if possible, the various ideas and hopes for peace which prevail all over the world. The nations doing the fighting would be glad to stop if they could, I believe, but they are afraid to let go."

"Those who accompanied me on the Oscar II were as fine a body of people for that particular mission as I could ask, and the interested delegates that met us at Christiansia were all good men. I am simply financing and carrying out as far as possible the work set underway last year at the meeting at The Hague of the Women's International Peace Congress. This work ultimately will bring Europe to its senses and stop the war."

"If what I have done will bring peace only one day nearer, I shall be more than repaid. Every day the war is shortened will save 30,000 lives, and 30,000 lives will mean much toward restoring order and normal conditions."

No Advertising Scheme.

"If necessary I will go to Europe, and if it will help matters I will charter another ship. I am not doing it for personal glory, gain or advertising. I have more money now than I can use, and I feel I am simply custodian of what I have. It was entrusted to me by the people, some of whom are to-day fighting in the trenches."

Commenting on the preparedness issue in President Wilson's message, Mr. Ford said:

"I am against preparedness, as preparedness means war. No man will arm himself unless he means to attack. Even when he takes a fork in his hand he is preparing to attack an oyster or a beefsteak."

"It would be better for the administration to find out first if the people themselves want armament. If they do, they will eventually get what Europe is getting now. As to other features of President Wilson's message, especially with reference to trade and a greater merchant marine, we are all with him on that."

At the request of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, Collector of the Port Dudley F. Malone arranged for Mr. Ford, a member of the naval consulting board, to be taken off the JUSTICE JOS. R. LAMAR DEAD.

Was Cousin of Noted Justice L. Q. C. Lamar, of Mississippi.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Joseph Rucker Lamar, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, died at his home here, to-night after an illness of several months. He was 58 years old and had been on the Supreme bench five years.

A year ago Justice Lamar suffered a stroke of paralysis, but was improving nicely until just before the holidays, when he took a severe cold which settled on his lungs. In his weakened condition the attack proved particularly severe and he had practically been at death's door for several days.

He Was Hard Worked.

To-morrow will be the fifth anniversary of Justice Lamar's elevation to the Supreme Court. He was appointed December 12, 1910, by President Taft and took the oath of office on January 8 following. Justice Lamar, until his attack of paralysis, contended with Justice Hughes, of New York, for the distinction of being one of the most vigorous jurists on the bench. None worked any harder. He also had the distinction of being one of the few members of the court appointed by a President of opposite political faith. President Taft appointed him in 1910 with only two precedents for such action, those of Justices Jackson and Lurton.

Justice Lamar was born in Ruckersville, Albemarle county, Georgia, October 14, 1857. He attended the University of Georgia and Bethany College, where he was graduated in 1877. He attended the law school at Washington and Lee University, and was admitted to the bar at Augusta, Ga., in 1878. He lived at Augusta until appointed to the Supreme Court bench.

Coming from distinguished Southern stock, he was one of the few men whose family had previously had a representative on the bench. The Justice was a cousin to Associate Justice L. Q. C. Lamar, of Mississippi, who served on the bench from 1838 to 1893.

Honored by Georgia.

He was honored by his State, by many positions for which his learning and ability as a lawyer fitted him. First, he was a member of the Georgia House of Representatives, and in 1892 was appointed by the Supreme Court of Georgia as one of the commissioners to prepare a code of laws for the State, which code was adopted by the General Assembly in 1895. He was again honored on January 1, 1901, by appointment to fill an unexpired term as Associate Justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, and was elected to the same position at the ensuing election. In 1905 he resigned to resume the practice of law.

In the practice of the law he largely represented railroads and other big corporations, and yet, in the day of antipathy to corporation lawyers, his integrity was so highly regarded that the Senate, without delay, confirmed his nomination.

Coming to Washington as a man little known beyond his State, he rose in public estimation as a member of the Court-led President Wilson to select him as the principal commissioner for the United States in the A. B. C. mediation at Niagara Falls in 1914 between the United States and Mexico over conditions in the Southern republic. In this position he acquitted himself with distinction.

Rev. J. A. Bond's 1916 Appointments.

Rev. J. A. Bond, of Salem, was in Walhalla for a short while last Monday. He informed us that, during 1916 he would serve four churches in the Twelve-Mile River Baptist Association during 1916. His appointments follow:

First Sunday—Whitewater at 11 a. m.; 3 p. m. on Saturday before.

Second Sunday—Pleasant Grove, N. C., at 11 a. m.; 3 p. m. on Saturday before.

Third Sunday—Little River at 11 a. m.; 3 p. m. on Saturday before.

Fourth Sunday—Whitewater, N. C., at 11 a. m.; 3 p. m. on Saturday before.

Rev. Bond was at Whitewater last Sunday to fill his appointment, but no one was present. This was due to a change in the preaching Sunday at that church.

Bergensfjord on a special customs cutter as soon as the ship cleared quarantine. Mrs. Ford, their son, Edgar Ford, and a few friends accompanied the party to meet them.
